MARCH 19, 2025, GARRISON, NY— Garrison Art Center (GAC) is pleased to present Roundels: Running Together, an exhibition by artist Heather Cox, featuring photographic portraits and intricate photo-sculptures. Using donated photographs and a stapler, Cox transforms found images by cutting them into thousands of small circles and reassembling them into dynamic, sculptural arrangements that explore memory, connection and metamorphosis. Roundels: Running Together will be on view from April 12 – May 4, 2025 with an opening reception on Saturday, April 12, from 5 – 7 pm.

In an attempt to create meaning in the midst of the pandemic, Cox began collaging orphaned snapshots. Miscellaneous birthdays, vacations and sunsets, melted into mosaics of color, tone and pattern. The bite of a stapler, like the camera's shutter click, fixed each photo to another, complicating the play between 2D and 3D surfaces.

As the largest of the photo-sculptures grew too heavy to support themselves, Cox began using her body as an armature. She photographed herself, and then others, wearing them as metaphorical camouflage: carapace, veil, armor, and mask. The resulting formal studio portraits will be on view for the first time, accompanied by their companion sculptures. As memory and materials fade, Roundels: Running Together reanimates our fragmented collective visual history.
